

REV. WILLIAM MOFFATT GRIER.
D. D., LL. D.

In the death of the Rev. Dr. Grier, president of Erskine College, and senior editor of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian, the State loses one of her best and noblest citizens. The death of such a man is nothing less than a calamity to the State. The news of his death will bring deep sorrow to many in our community, for he had many warm personal friends among our people. He was well known all over the State, and none knew him but to love him, none named him but to praise. He died at his home in Due West, Abbeville County, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, September 3rd, from a stroke of apoplexy. He had preached at Bethlehem Church, three miles from Due West, in the morning and was stricken shortly after reaching home, and died in forty minutes.

Dr. Grier was the second son of Rev. R. C. Grier, D. D., for many years president of Erskine College, and one of the leading men of the State in his day. He was born February 11, 1843, and was therefore in his fifty-seventh year when he died. He graduated from Erskine College in July, 1860, and when the war broke out the following year, he entered the Confederate service as a private in the 6th Regiment, S. C. Volunteers. At the battle of Williamsburg, Va., May 5, 1862, he was severely wounded, and lost a leg in consequence of it. He was taken prisoner and confined for a time in Fortress Monroe, and was afterwards exchanged, and honorably discharged because of the loss of his limb. Our lamented General John Bratton was a prisoner at the same time in Fortress Monroe, and in their prison home there grew up a friendship between the two that lasted all their lives. A Federal officer, by the name of Simonton, took a deep interest in the boy prisoner, and showed him much kindness and many favors. A few years ago they exchanged visits, and renewed the friendship begun in those bloody times.

Entering on the study of theology at the close of the war, he graduated from Erskine Theological Seminary, and was licensed to preach in April, 1866. He accepted a call from the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church at Allenton, Ala., and there remained until called in 1871 to take the place of his father, who had died in March of that year as president of Erskine College. In this honorable position he remained until he died. He was also professor in the Theological Seminary, located at Due West, and was principal editor of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian, the organ of the A. R. P. Synod of the South. This is a brief outline of the life of this good and great man, for truly he was good and he was great.

In the home, he was gentle, loving, and kind, a model husband and father. In the councils of the Associate Reformed Church he stood at the top, and was the acknowledged leader in all its work. As president of Erskine College he was a signal success. Of brilliant intellect and exceptional taste, he inspired the respect and gained the love of all the students. All over this southern country are men whose lives were touched and moulded for good by him, and his influence will live for years to come. He came to Erskine College in the dark days just after the war, and through his ability and zeal he has placed it in the front rank of the institutions of our State. His loss to the college will be very great. As a preacher of the gospel, Dr. Grier had few equals. He was a peerless orator, and moved the multitudes with strange power. Who that has ever heard him, in the pulpit, or on the platform, can ever forget his soul-moving eloquence? His loss to religious journalism is very great, for his paper was one of the very best of all the religious papers.

As we stand in the shadow of his loss today, we instinctively recall the words of King David, and feel that they are appropriate now: "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?" The Church and the State are poorer since he died. Everywhere among us, men will be sorry for his death, but he has left a rich heritage of which his family and friends may well be proud. To the college of which he was the president, to the church of which he was an honored leader, and to his family bereft of its loving head, we extend our sincere sympathy. The State will feel his loss indeed, but among his own people will be felt the keenest loss.

Ian MacLaren tells us in his book, "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," that when they came to bury George Howe, his mother standing beside the coffin of her son, thanked the neighbors for their kindness to him. Drumhugh, in his reply, voiced the sentiment of the given when he said: "Margaret Hoo, this is no day for many words, but there's just as heart in Drumhugh, and it's all right."

We are sure that these words are true in all the Associate Reformed Church to-day.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.
The Dreyfus trial is wholly untellable to the average American. The French system of administering justice is ridiculous to us, who have been accustomed to the English system of jurisprudence. On reading the detailed account of the trial from day to day, the American can not help laughing at the strange rules of evidence which govern the introduction of testimony, and one naturally contrasts the mode of trial with our own system. The contrast is exceedingly favorable to our method. The comparison tends to give us a higher appreciation of our courts and the laws administered by them.

It sounds funny to read how a witness in the Dreyfus trial jumps up, interrupting another witness with the accusation that a lie has been told. It is strange to us that the accused is asked to reply in a little speech to testimony as soon as it is concluded. Perhaps the strangest thing to us in the Dreyfus trial is that witnesses are allowed the greatest latitude in relating hearsay evidence and then end it by expressing their opinion of it. For instance, Col. Cordier testified Tuesday that he was absent from the intelligence department when the bordereau arrived, but that he believed it was received by Henry. Such evidence as this would never have been received in an English or American tribunal. If he was absent, he did not know when the bordereau arrived, and as he was not there, his belief is worth nothing.

Of course, it is impossible, upon such testimony as is adduced before the French court, to predict what will be the result of the trial. Strange verdicts may be expected from courts that employ such strange methods in the search of truth.

For quick work the Americans excel. A few months ago the British Government wanted some steel bridges placed in Africa. Time was an important consideration and the United States manufacturers alone seemed able to erect the bridge in the required time. A few days ago one of the bridges was completed, and Lord Ketchener made a speech and paid this high compliment to this country: "As regards this magnificent bridge, it can fairly claim a record. Every effort was made in November and December to place the order for it in England, but it was found impossible to have it completed in the necessary time. But where Englishmen failed I am delighted to find that our cousins across the Atlantic stepped in. The opening of this bridge to-day is due to their energy, ability and the power they possess in so marked a degree of turning out work of this magnitude in less time than it can be done anywhere else."

Overcoming time is the great characteristic of the American. The pension fraud becomes more gigantic. During the year 40,991 names have been added to the pension and 43,186 dropped. Of the number dropped 34,345 were by reason of death. The roll is made up of 753,451 surviving soldiers and 237,415 widows and dependent relatives. We have always known that Lee's army was confronted by a tremendous number and that the Confederates killed the Union soldiers by the thousands, but the pension figures, if true, add increased glory to the achievement of Southern arms. The truth, however, is glory enough for the South and it does not care to pay more than its share of the millions annually disbursed. Since 1866 the total disbursements to pensioners has amounted to $2,389,910,974.

GOVERNOR McSWENEY will receive the congratulations of the people of the State in his prompt removal of the two magistrates who committed the flight of Williams. It will be a wholesome effect.

CURE FOR TEXAS FEVER IN CATTLE.
H. M. Woodward in The Practical Farmer. This disease has caused a great deal of trouble among cattle in the South, and even in the North in summer, so the government was obliged to take a hand in it; there have been several stations established at various points of the country where Southern cattle which are known to be infected with the disease are dipped in a solution which provides a complete cure. Up to this time most of the Northern States have quarantined against Southern cattle, except when they were shipped to packing houses, and to be slaughtered at once. Now quarantine is raised for all cattle that have been dipped. In the North there is no danger in winter, frost stamping out the disease. It spreads among the cattle by means of ticks, when first they are dipped in a tank of kerosene, and then until when of adult age they are as large as a kernel of corn. The female then drops from the animal to the ground, lays scores of eggs and then dies. The eggs hatch in three or four weeks and immediately begin to climb upward on grass or weeds waiting until an animal brushes against it when it clings to it.

The first symptoms of the disease are high fever, loss of appetite, arched back and swollen eyes; the disease developing rapidly and death ensuing in a few days. The dipping cure is as follows: Zinc lined tanks 40 ft long, 10 ft deep and 3 ft wide, are made with zinc lining and high walls on each side to prevent the solution from splashing. The tank is filled almost full of a preparation of dynamo oil with one and a half per cent of sulphur. The animals are driven to the tank where they stand on a drop platform which plunges them down into the tank. They come out thoroughly wet and no more trouble is experienced with the ticks. An experiment station has been established here to test the cure after dipping, and several hundred head were shipped here last season, after being dipped at the Fort Worth, Texas, station. The cattle on arriving here were placed under the supervision of an assistant State veterinarian, and before the fumes of the tank were divided the animals came to the water where they were being sent to as many different farms and were allowed to mix among healthy cattle. All summer they ran together but neither Northern or Southern cattle showed any symptoms of disease, and though they were in contact every week not a living tick was found on them. More than this the veterinary brought some of the living ticks with him from the South and placed them on healthy Northern cattle; in six days they began to show a quick pulse action, their temperature gradually rose and a week later they died of Texas fever. This discovery is a great thing for Southern cattle raisers as they have been practically at the mercy of the buyers when sending cattle North. They must be killed within a certain number of days, according to law, or the buyer could pay what he pleased. Winnsboro, Co., Ill.

NEW HOPE NEWS.
New Hope has been the scene of quite a lively circle this summer. Quite a number of visitors have been in our midst, but most of them have returned to their respective homes, bringing the social events to a close. It is sad that everything must come to an end, but still it is true.

Moonlight picnics have been in demand and are always enjoyable to those who attend, especially where they are gotten up for the benefit of one and sometimes associating another with him. The New Hope Dramatic Club gave an entertainment on the night of the 21st of August, the play being "Ten Nights in a Bar-room." Parts of the play were acted as if the actors had been through the scenes in real life, thus the play was quite a success in every way. The actresses not having had the experience are to be highly commended on the manner in which they acted their several parts.

Next in order was the Chester reunion, which was attended by most of our young men. The boys report a glorious time and have already expressed a determination to attend next year regardless of the consequence, time or place. However, there are some who regret having attended and have no desire to do so again.

One of our young men is very much undecided which of three sisters he likes best. Later—He has decided but the three sisters have not.

The August storm, as severe as it was, did not prevent calling in the neighborhood, as one of our young men rode many miles a very dark night to pay his call.

Miss Isabelle McIlwaine, of Lancaster, has been visiting in the neighborhood. She was very favorably impressed with one of our young men but upon leaving declared that he was not a man. Why?

Miss Margaret Morris, after spending the summer in the neighborhood, has returned to her home in Macon, Ga. It is with regrets that we see her leave.

Mr. Walter M. Brice, who was enlisted with the 2nd North Carolina Regiment, in Cuba, returned home some weeks ago after spending a year on the island.

Miss Eugenia Anderson, of the Brick Church, has been visiting in the neighborhood. While here she was asked out "to see how fast a horse could trot."

Miss Saunders, of Kentucky, and Miss Greene, of Columbia, have been the guests of Mrs. S. H. Simonton. Mr. J. M. Simonton, of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting his mother.

Perhaps New Hope will be represented at Winthrop this fall. Sept. 2, '99. Shanks.

Story of a Slave.
To be bound hand and foot for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, a colored man, tells how such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work."

This miracle working medicine is a godsend to weak, sickly, rundown people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents. Sold by McMaster Co., druggists.

MOSSY DALE ITEMS.
Our community was visited with a nice shower of rain on Friday last, also on yesterday. The rain fell in nice, gentle showers which was absorbed by the ground and penetrated to the roots of vegetation. We were very much in need of rain when it came and I fear some crops were too far spent to do much good. The vine peas have a chance to make a crop yet, as they do not begin to fruit until late in the season.

Gardens are not in it this season. Turnip planting has begun with this season. Some were planted a month ago but did not germinate, especially rutabagas. I fear the seed were not good, for they had laid sufficient to bring them up. Sweet potatoes are not making yet; has been too dry for them. The cotton crop will not reach fifty per cent through this section. I never saw as poor crops as are between here and Winnsboro in my long experience. Farms that have a ways made fine crops heretofore seem to be worse off than others that are not so good. It seems that manuring has not paid and, from present prospects, I think the manufacturer will realize more fully in the fall that collections will be short. I see nothing bright in the future for this country, but at the same time we should be very thankful for even the present condition of affairs, for we have had no storms or other calamity that could have made it worse. I hear that the Texas fever has seized some of our friends. I hope it will not prove fatal, but that it may be a mild attack and they will be convalescent by 1900. I judge conditions generally are the same all over the

AN EFFECTIVE AD.
Augusta Herald.

The Yorkville Enquirer has a striking illustration of its value as an advertising medium. A lady lost her fan while on her way to church. It was of considerable value to the owner and friends immediately posted notices in public places. Then an advertisement was inserted in the Enquirer. Within an hour after the first paper was off the press a gentleman telephoned the office to notify the owner that the fan was in his possession. The notice, which, of course, had only been put up in the hope that they might accomplish the desired result sooner, had been overlooked, but the advertisement struck the right place almost instantly.

That was a pretty good story, but the Rock Hill Herald does one better. Two setter dogs belonging to a gentleman in town had been missing from home for four days. The owner advertised on the posts along the streets, made extended inquiry, but heard nothing of his setters. Finally he decided to advertise his loss in the Herald, and when he was ascending the staircase leading into the office to place his ad, his dogs followed him up the steps and walked into the office behind him. "That is a true bill," swears the Herald.

SOUTHERN COTTON MILLS IN DANGER

The American Cotton Trust, through their representative, John E. Searies, the manager of the sugar trust and promoter of the round bale, is putting forth his best energies to secure the control of the cotton trade of the East. The New York World, of August 14th, referring to certain deals in progress says: "The Searies-Flint syndicate is acting for the American Cotton Trust and the purchase of the Fall River Mills, boasting of 2,235,312 spindles, is the beginning of the plant absorbing all cotton print mills in the United States."

Some of the largest operators in cotton cloth at the trade centers believe that the Cotton Trust will succeed in effecting the consolidation of the mills under one general management thereby largely increasing the production and materially lowering the price and cutting the throats of the Southern spinners.

Will not the same trust who are trying to control the raw material in round bales amalgamate the mills of the South?

Farmers, ginners, manufacturers and persons interested in the cotton business in the South should make a determined effort to thwart the plans of this American Cotton Trust, the greatest octopus ever originated in our country which may turn the profits of Southern mill industry into the pockets of the combine States and deprive our Southern stockholders from sharing in their own enterprises.—Wilmington Messenger.

ON A COLUMBIA CHAINLESS THERE IS NO WASTE OF ENERGY AT ANY POINT IN THE CRANK REVOLUTION

Direct testimony is always better than hearsay evidence. If you desire to know about Bevel-Gear Chainless bicycles, do not ask a person who has never ridden one, or is in any way connected with a manufacturer who does not make them. Inquire of riders of the Columbia Bevel-Gear Chainless. There are thousands of them throughout the country. They are to be met in every city, in almost every town of the United States—so popular has the machine become in the short space of a year and a half. There are reasons for this. The Chainless is easier to take care of than the chain wheel. It has a longer life. Every ounce of power applied to the pedals is made effective. This last advantage over chain-driven wheels is apparent the moment you mount the machine. The Chainless seems to possess an activity and life of its own. You notice it in starting, stopping, back-pedaling, riding on levels, and especially in ascending grades. PRICES, $60 TO $75.

CHAIN WHEELS. Columbias, Hartfords, Vedettes. Prices $25 to $50.
